Gentlemen:

I have an old copper coin of unknown value and currency for the year 1787. It is about the size of the old United States cent. On one side is the head of a man which resembles that of one of the Roman Emperors, and the words "Vctof Connec" as nearly as I can tell. On the other side is the figure of a woman seated on a small representation of the earth with meridians and parallels. By her left side which is the one presented is an indescribable something in the shape of a sack or bundle. In the left hand is a long spear in the right, which is extended, a branch or wreath. On this side of the coin is the inscription "Ind. et Lib." and the date 1787. The coin is very irregular and is not as thick as the old U. S. cent. I also have the following coins: U.S. cent for 1838; U.S. cent for 1839;

RG104 E-1 Box 168

U.S. half cent for 1809 and a Canada cent for 185-9.
I wish to know the premiums on these if any.
I enclose a stamp for reply.

Respectfully Yours

W. Homer Ames.

Gentlemen:

I have an old copper coin of unknown value and currency for the year 1787. It is about the size of the old United States cent. On one side is the head of a man which resembles that of one of the Roman Emperors, and the words "Uctof Connec" as nearly as I can tell. On the other side is the figure of a woman seated on a small representation of the earth with meridians and parallels. By her left side which is the one presented is an indescribable something in the shape of a sack or bundle. In the left hand is a long spear in the right, which is extended, a branch or wreath. On this side of the coin is the inscription "Ind. Et Lib." And the date 1787. The coin is very irregular and is not as thick as the old U.S. cent. I also have the following coins: U.S. cent for 1838; U.S. cent for 1839; U.S. half cent for 1809 and a Canada cent for 1859. I wish to know the premiums on these if any. I enclose a stamp for reply.
